

Fred Meijer Kenowa Trail

Connecting the Holland and Grand Rapids trail systems, the 9.8-mile Fred Meijer Kenowa Trail travels along vast expanses of corn, wheat and soybean fields and pastures with grazing livestock. This quiet paved pathway will keep you entertained, watching farmers work their fields and witnessing the changing scenery from spring planting to fall harvest.

Upper Macatawa Greenway Trail

The 2.8-mile Upper Macatawa Greenway Trail provides a critical link between the Fred Meijer Kenowa Trail and a vast network of trails in the Holland area leading to the Lake Michigan shoreline. "Short and sweet," we think you'll enjoy every inch of this beautifully landscaped trail. The paved path begins at Adams Road and meanders through the Upper Macatawa Natural Area, passing along the Macatawa River, through meadows, grassy wetlands, rolling hills, dense hardwood forest, and several bridges and boardwalks over steep ravines, linking up with the Fred Meijer Kenowa Trail. The Upper Macatawa Natural Area also boasts a network of fun mountain biking trails that weave through the hilly terrain.
